

A Study on Employee Job Satisfaction in Hospitality Company in Bangalore

N. Prathap
prathapnpr@gmail.com
Ph. No: 0 78297 41804

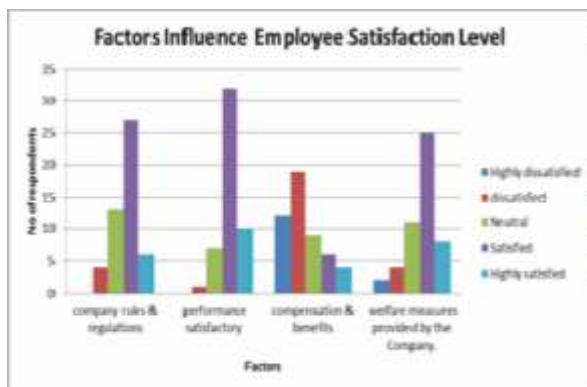

Student's Name	N. Prathap	HRM (FT-2014)
Academic Supervisors	A. C. Lokesh
Industrial Supervisor(s)	Reshmi, Assistant HR Manager, GP Hotel & Spa, Bengaluru.

Keywords: Job Satisfaction, Career Growth Opportunity, compensation, Reward and Recognition

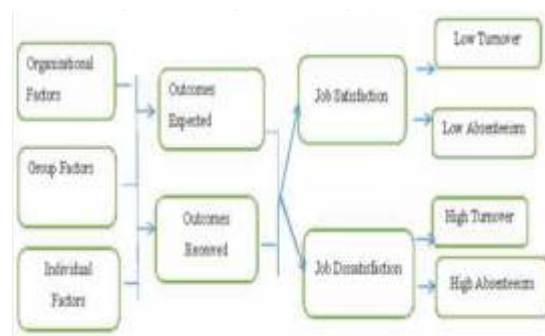

Abstract:

Employees are back bone of every organization, no employees no work can be done. Thus, employee satisfaction is very important. Employees will be more satisfied if they get what they expect, job satisfaction relates to the employee's inner feelings

Practices and state of mind of employees is essential hotel business, because it directly affects the customer. In this way, the staff is basically responsible for the upper hand for a reasonable hotel. Lack of business experience in the guest workers forcing them to leave their jobs many problems. The goal of researchers is in the Golden Palms Hotel & Spa, Bangalore employees recognize employee satisfaction. 50 employees paid in satisfaction of their review and clean and motivating factor. From the analysis it can be concluded with supervisors, growth opportunities, compensation, reward and recognition and work environment, employee communication, itself contribute to eventual job satisfaction among employees, they emphasized that these variables greater value.

Factors influencing the employee job satisfaction level

Job satisfaction model

Conclusion: The present study focus on Employee Job Satisfaction in Hospitality Company in Bangalore. Research reveals that unanimous contribution from supervisors, growth opportunities, compensation, reward and recognition and work environment, employee communication, itself contribute to eventual job satisfaction among employees, they emphasized that these variables greater value.